hours and hours
going slowly
flying
a crowd around the concession stand 55 minutes of genesis and mark, the scarlet letter, the battle of the bulge basketball or jump rope at noon someone who wants to understand

crazy pep sessions
indifference
a desire for change
warmth from the register by the library
warmth from good friends solitude, loneliness
sometimes we wonder "why bethany"
yet we are glad we are here.

bible

sometimes when you're really sick of all the ugliness in the world and in yourself, it's a relief to go to bible and read and hear about people who weren't perfect, but really cared. it helps you to care, in turn, making the world seem a little less ugly.

Mr. Hostetler

art class is a place where you can put part of yourself into a creative project—an oil painting, a wood carving, really countless ways of expressing yourself. it is a place of beginnings, and sketchy ideas turning into more formulated ones. it's learning to know people in a new way—through the expression of themselves in art work. you really learn to appreciate the work of others and what they put into it. in art, you have a sense of being a creator, and sometimes you surprise even yourself with the finished product.

Drama Club Christmas play

joining drama club was more than joining a group of kids intent on acting. it was learning to accept responsibility instead of shifting it, to work successfully within a group having different ideas. perhaps more important, even than acting was learning the ability to unmask and stop acting—off-stage.

beginning with a prayer meeting and following with several retreats the y's purpose was to give 235 people or 2 people the opportunity to build friendships on deeper and more spiritual levels. a second goal was to move the students out of bethany into service in the community as witnesses of Jesus' caring.

sba

sba is the official arm of the student body. through the student council it tries to serve the interest of the students. the $3300 raised by workday, was used to finance the exchange program and buy some needed equipment for the school. sba also sponsors activities like the get-acquainted social and the christmas banquet.

all-school social

the social was fun and HOT! we played for points, class against class, doing silly things like egg throwing and pie eating contests, three-legged races, balloon popping relays, tug-o-war, and building pyramids. we got all involved in yelling for our classes. it made us feel like little kids again. after totaling the points (the sophomores victorious), we went into the chapel and watched don mishler's magic show, and then finished the good time off with ice cream.

it started hard—disagreements, inexperience, and fear. but slowly our problems worked out and we became a staff. we worked 3 nights a month trying to turn out a paper students would enjoy. if anyone would read between the lines they see hard work, trying to communicate, and having a blast doing it.

chapel has, as always, included interesting speakers and those not so interesting, times of enrichment and times of resentment. ypca arranged several chapels where students chose 1 of 10 different discussion groups on varied subjects. it was a decent change. opinions on chapel differ but many times it's a student himself that makes chapel what it is to him.

home ec club decked the halls with boughs of mistletoe, streamers, and a christmas tree and it was truly a season to be jolly because vacation was right around the corner. acappella trolled ancient yule-tide carols through the halls, then all donning their gay apparel, enjoyed a swedish dinner, and fa la la la la—were were free!

amahl—a beautiful production requiring a tremendous amount of concentration, days of orchestra practice, work and worry on mr. hostetler's and mr. shantz's part, hours on stage design, costumes, lighting and make-up, evenings on the chapel stage hacking out parts, and an effort on each person's part to "be" the person he was portraying. some rehearsals were a riot, others put a strain on body, voice and emotions. when it was actually taking place it was frightening but greater, the feeling when you were suddenly really amahl's mother, a king, or a shepherd.

after much forethought, decision, disagreement, and agreement, after practically living in the gym three days and nights, the juniors were able to offer the seniors a very pretty moonlit garden.

the atmosphere was very relaxed; people were free to talk with each other. after enjoying walks through the garden, the buffet, and "cool hand luke", the evening was finished off with pizza and bowling.

track

track is good
because you get to know yourself when you're dead tired and because you're being challenged by yourself and others or maybe it's just good to run and get your bod in shape.

track has its exhaustion
and its disappointments
like winning three straight and then losing larry.
it has its far-out times
like seeing ronnie break three school records.
it has its thrills
like seeing glendon burn around that last turn.

track is a good way to spend a couple months.

soccer

it really feels good to know that you were part of something that was really good. at times you hate it, but you have to do it and afterwards it gives you a satisfied, good feeling that is impossible to describe. on the other hand, when you lose, well, that's different. it leaves you frustrated and over and over in your mind you are making a goal you should've had. when you are told by someone that you are the best team he's ever seen play high school ball, your feelings soar and you can hardly wait to play again and prove that you ARE. it's not just one or two people that win the game, it's everyone put together. every person on the team has a little part to be proud of in our 12-4 record and in each of our trophies.

spirit

most people measure spirit by noise, lively pep sessions, posters, a big cheerblock. since bethany doesn't rate too high in these areas we tend to think there isn't much spirit evident. constant winning might produce those things but our past few records haven't been high on the win side, and yet we and many parents continue to come and continue to want to support our team and care personally about the guys.

administration

change and the rapid rate of change is unavoidable in this decade. the administrator's task is to help determine which changes are desirable, help to implement the appropriate changes, and to predict as accurately as possible the consequences of any change.

in this changing world administrators face many decisions each day. some decisions are rather routine and are made quite easily. other decisions are perplexing and require a great deal of thought and much soul searching. nevertheless, all decisions, whether large or small, have a direct or indirect effect upon all of the people involved in our school—students, alumni, faculty, parents, and church members. therefore, all are expected to help in bringing about positive changes in our school which will help each individual reach his fullest potential in Christ.

when we were freshmen we were a small class and rather quiet. we depended a lot on each other and we were unified and close. we did fun things together—parties and retreats. it was fun getting to know new people.

as sophomores we were still a close class, but we began to open ourselves to other people in the school, getting involved in school activities.

our junior year was a time of change. it came, bringing new personalities in great variety, both in new faces and old. we became more opinionated, more vocal, busier with new responsibilities. conflicts sometimes resulted as the class which had been predominately gray became more and more black and white.

the unity we had as seniors wasn't like that of the previous years. and it came, not because we were all the same, but because we knew each other and appreciated our differences. we enjoyed sitting around talking, playing risk or football, feeling free to act how we felt. we did not hope for the kind of unity we had as freshmen. we looked ahead to our futures and saw college for some, or marriage, or travel, or a job. we found our unity in diversity.

"what is your name?"–"jan unoson"
"say it again"–"jan unoson"
"i see, and where are you from?"–"sweden"
"oh ya . . . , i guess the only thing i know about switzerland is that you have a lot of snow and that copenhagen is your capital"
"well, i'm from sweden and our capital is stockholm"

being an exchange student i got used to conversations like this. but there is something nice, perhaps innocent, about the outgoing personality of so many bethany students; it made it easy to make friends and to feel accepted. i met people, more people, and after a while many of them became my intimate friends.

sometimes i'd sit down and wonder, what am i doing here. i came to learn more- about what? america, the world, international problems, or just about life, and you and me. an american school differs a lot from a european school. it means a lot of new experiences and adjustments. but with the small size of bethany, the friendliness of both students and teachers, and the school's emphasis on the whole personality, my adjustment went very well. but the year went by so fast.

bethany was my firm point during the year, and many of my my best experiences were also there; i certainly learned a lot from you all and i hope you could learn something from me, too. jan

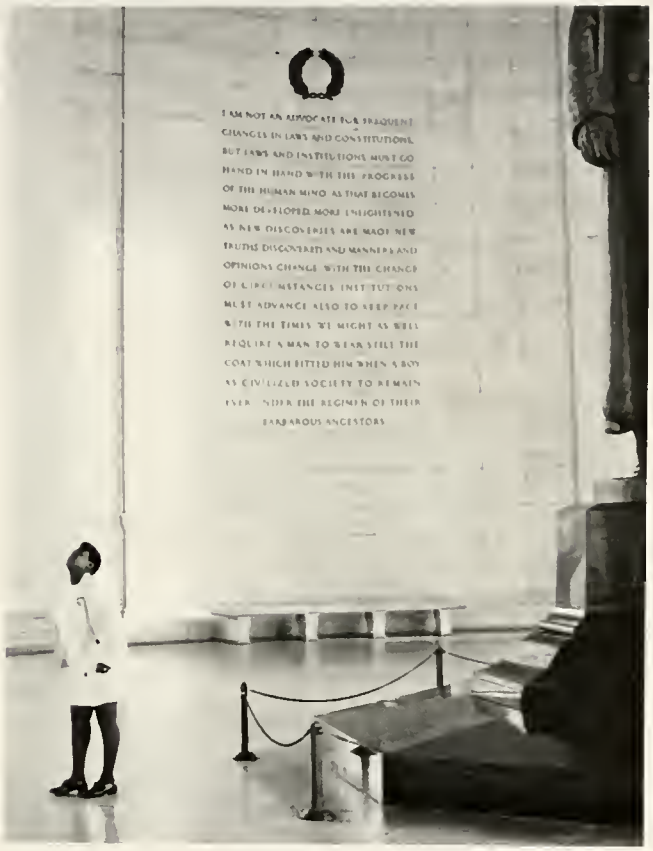
senior trip

Mildred Berry



the bus ride—long, tiring and uncomfortable; sometimes so boring that we resorted to playing pattycake, singing parts of the elijah, cards (of course), being spiders over the backs of the seats, and dozing in the most uncomfortable and contorted positions; rest stops—always when you had finally managed to doze off and never when you desperately needed them.

arriving at e.m.c.—sticky, grimy and longing for a shower; finding friendly faces willing to loan a towel, a room, or a hair dryer? seeing e.m.c. from the inside, finding old friends, walking barefoot in november and feeling refreshed.

the bus again—a tour of monticello—the bus again. reaching the hotel near d.c.; flopping on first available bed, "i don't care who i sleep with as long as they don't kick and hog covers"; sound asleep before you know it.

the rest of the week—a blur of bus riding, touring, walking, the f.b.i., sightseeing, laughing, the capitol, talking, coping, enjoying, the supreme court, being bored, thinking, learning, finding a beautiful person in someone you once didn't care for, laughing some more and maybe even growing—together.

we are juniors now and have begun to realize the responsibility of leadership
for our fish fry
for the banquet
for the school publications
for various committees and clubs
the tiredness
of being unaccustomed to so many demanding activities of trying to be mature
of searching for our priorities
the new, incomprehensible feelings of being productive
especially to those who have given to us all our lives of the joy and struggle for meaningful relationships with old fridens
with new ones
and with God.

Strength for Today from the Past

Hesston strives to be a Christian place. It is also Mennonite, bringing to bear the traditions and values of both ideas. Hesston College is sixty years old. Yet the structure stands tall and intact as we continue to build on the strongest of foundations.

For "No other foundation can anyone lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ." I Cor. 3:11
